Opinion

"As a kid I had a dream to become a fire fighter. In junior high school I joined Voluntary Fire Brigade whose member I am still today. My first serious rescue job took place in 2009. We rescued people from houses inflicted by the floods. I wasn't prepared either physically or mentally for this extreme situation. Once the mission was accomplished I felt happy because I was able to help somebody. Additionally I felt satisfaction with the fact that I had won the fight not only with this natural disaster but also with myself and my weaknesses."
